The Williams Family

ORIGIN OF NAME

"The name of Williams is very ancient, and it probably extends throughout the civilized world. Most of the original members of the family were doubtless of Welsh extraction. They form a large part of the principality of Wales, in England, somewhat like the O's of Ireland and the Mac's of Scotland. Burke's book—Peerage and Baronetage—says of Sir Robert Williams, the ninth Baronet of the house of Williams of Penrhyn, that 'his family is lineally descended from Marchudel of Cynn, Lord of Abergelen in Denbighshire, of one of the fifteen tribes of North Wales, who lived in the time of Roderic Maur (Roderic the Great), King of the Britons, about the year 849. Of him was descended the royal house of Tudor. The pedigree of Marchudel is deduced from Brutus, the first King of the Britains'.

* * * And still farther in the same work: 'This most ancient family of the principality of Wales son of Sylvius Posthumius, son of Ascanus, son of Aneas, which Brutus was the first king of this Island, and began to reign about 1100 years before the birth of Christ.' Other authorities trace them back to several years before the Norman Conquest, 1060, from a Welsh chief."
(STEPHEN W. WILLIAMS, M. D., A. M.)

(A) GEORGE WILLIAMS, Founder. The tradition handed down to his descendants records that he came from Wales to America with a train of Friends, in 1690, settling in Pennsylvania for a while and then proceeding to Monocacy in the present Frederick County (then Prince George County), Maryland; but most persistent and painstaking research has failed to discover the exact date of his arrival, the name of the ship in which he came, or from what port he sailed.

Ellwood Roberts, in his history of Plymouth (Penna.) Meeting, states: The township of Plymouth was originally purchased and settled about the year 1685 by Friends that came from Plymouth, in Old England, and mentions the Williams family as being of Welsh ancestry, their progenitors having bought land in the White Marsh Valley (Penna.) more than two centuries ago (1900). This reference appears in that part of his book relating to certain descendants of George Williams. Hazard, in his "Annals of Pennsylvania," says: "Mr. Williams has removed to Maryland"—that and nothing more. This was prior to 1700. So it would appear that the tradition of the origin of George Williams might be correct.

On the other hand, a manuscript in existence states that the George Williams family came to America from Wales but had resided in England for over 300 years, and that the first member in this country was Richard Williams who arrived in 1632 at the age of 16 years, and that he was the father of George Williams, and grandfather of Richard Williams who married Prudence Beales in Maryland.

The first authentic record of George Williams is in the Minute of Fairfax (Virginia) Monthly Meeting, recording the marriage of Richard Williams and Prudence Beales, October 11, 1746, at Monocacy, in Maryland, just across the Virginia line, which states that Richard was the son of George Williams. Cold-spring, or Monocacy Meeting at that time came within the jurisdiction of the Monthly Meeting of Fairfax, Loudon County, Virginia. About five miles from Monocacy is the town of Bealesville, probably founded by the family of Prudence Beales, wife of Richard Williams, 1st.

There are four settlers from any one of which he may have been descended :

The family of General Otho H. Williams, of Washington's staff, by virtue of the fact that the General's ancestors, who founded Williamsport, Maryland, came from Wales and settled in Prince George County, Maryland, about the same time;

That of Colonel John Williams of North Carolina, the founder of which, John Williams, settled first in Virginia, his descendants moving to North Carolina, the first accurate record of George Williams appearing on the book of a Virginia (Fairfax) Meeting of Friends, this theory being strengthened by the name of the North Carolina Sharpes occurring by intermarriage in both families ;

That of John Williams who settled in Monmouth County, New Jersey, at the time of the Monmouth Patent, who had a son George, about 1700, a prominent minister of the Society of Friends (from the Minute of Richard Williams' marriage on the Fairfax Meeting record, however, the assumption is that his father George was not a Friend); and

That of John Williams, a Friend who settled at Goshen, Chester County, Penna., sometime known as "King John", but the name of George does not appear among those of his known children or grandchildren; other names, however--notably Jesse and Nathan-- appear in each family for several generations.

The tradition which has come down in both the eastern and western branches of the family, of the origin of George Williams, therefore, must be entitled to first consideration and is probably correct. That it has been impossible to substantiate it, is probably due to the fact that some of the records of the early Pennsylvania meetings were burned. It has been established that the passenger records of some shiploads of arrivals prior to 1700 were not preserved, either in this country or England. The absence of information is particularly true of Rhode Island, where many of the vital records were thrown overboard by the British during the war of the Revolution.

Stephen B. Weeks has this to say in regard to the migration of Friends southward in his "Southern Quakers and Slavery":

"The beginning of this movement southward, the counterpart of the movement of the next century westward, is to be found in the Hopewell settlement in Frederick County, Virginia. About 1725, Friends from Salem, N. J., and Nottingham, then in Pennsylvania, but thrown by Mason & Dixon into Maryland, settled in the upper part of Prince George County, Maryland, on a tributary of the Potomac. They were erected into a meeting by New Garden Monthly Meeting, Pennsylvania. In 1732 Alexander Ross and a company crossed the Potomac and thus initiated the migration of which we are now to write. In that year they obtained a charter for 100,000 acres of land situated on Opequan Creek, a tributary of the Potomac in what is now Frederick County, Virginia. A settlement was begun here by Alexander Ross, Josiah Ballinger, James Wright, Evan Thomas and other Friends from Pennsylvania and Elk River, Maryland. A meeting called Hopewell, or Opeckon, was established the same year, and one called Providence in 1733. They were organized in 1735 into Hopewell Monthly Meeting, under the auspices and care of Chester Quarterly Meeting, in Pennsylvania."

(E) RICHARD WILLIAMS, 1st. The minute spread upon the record book of Fairfax (Virginia) Monthly Meeting, shows that he was the son of George Williams, the founder, and married Prudence Beales, 10th Mo. 11th, 1746, at Coldspring, or Monocacy Meeting in Maryland. On 7th Mo. 27th, 1746, appears the following entry:

THE WILLIAMS FAMILY

"Richard Williams having for a considerable time been under care and notice of Friends now requests to be received as a member in unity. The Meeting, therefore, after deliberate consideration, granted his request."

On 7th Mo. 29th, 1746 :

"Richard Williams and Prudence Beales appeared here and signified their intention of taking each other in marriage, it being the second time, and nothing appearing to obstruct their proceeding, they are left to their liberty to accomplish their marriage according to the good order used amongst Friends, and the Meeting appoints Henny Ballinger and Jonathan Williams to see it so accomplished and make report to next Monthly Meeting."

On 12th Mo. 28th, 1746 :

"The Friends appointed to attend the marriage of Richard Williams and Prudence Beales report that it was orderly accomplished."

The next record states :

"Joseph Wells requests a certificate for himself and wife to the Monthly Meeting of Carver's Creek, in North Carolina. Also request is made for certificate for Thomas Beales and wife and Richard Williams and wife to the above said Monthly Meeting."

These certificates were approved and signed on 6th Mo. 26th, 1749, and Richard Williams and his brother-in-law Thomas Beales, a minister of the Society of Friends, and their wives, then moved to Guilford County, North Carolina.

A grandson of Prudence (Beales) Williams in his published "Reminiscences" wrote of her in 1876. "My grandmother remained a widow for the rest of her life, and died respected by all who knew her. She was an Elder in the Religious Society of Friends for many years, and was highly esteemed. She was opposed to slavery and a friend of the oppressed." She was born 3rd Mo. 1st, 1730; died 6th Mo. 26th, 1815.

Prudence Beales was the daughter of John Beales, of Bealesville, Maryland. John Beales, Sr., was a member of the Society of Friends who settled near Aston, Delaware County, Pennsylvania. He married in 1682, Mary, the daughter of William Clayton, Sr., and later moved to Nottingham, Penna., where he died in 1726. His children so far as definitely known, were John, Jr., William, Jacob, Mary and Patience. Prudence, daughter of John Beales of Nottingham and later of Bealesville, who married Richard Williams, 1st, had a brother named Thomas and probably one named Bowater. It is certain that Prudence and Thomas Beales were children of John Beales, but whether of the father or his son John, is not known, probably of the latter. Thomas Beales was a Minister of the Society of Friends and was the first white settler in the State of Ohio, having gone there in 1782 from North Carolina under the auspices of his Meeting to preach to the Indians.

William Clayton, father of Mary Clayton who married John Beales, Sr., arrived in the ship "Kent" from London in company with certain commissioners sent by the Proprietors of New Jersey, to purchase lands from the Indians, etc., in 1678. He purchased the share of Hans Olsson, one of the original grantees of Marcus Hook, and settled at that place. He was an active and consistent Friend and also participated in political affairs. He was a member of Governor Markham's Council, and and later of that of the Proprietary, at the same time serving as a Justice of Chester County, Penna., presiding at the first court held in Pennsylvania under the Proprietary government. His son, William Clayton, Jr., became the purchaser and occupant of 100 acres, embracing the site of Maylandsville, now included within the city of Philadelphia.

Historian Weeks tells us.

"About 1725 the vanguard of the Quaker movement appeared at Monocacy, Maryland. Here, like a true wave of Teutonic migration, it rested for a time. It reached Hopewell, Va., in 1732, and the next twelve or fifteen years were spent in subduing northern Virginia."

Richard Williams, 1st, settled at New Garden, in Guilford County, on what later became the site of the battle of Guilford Courthouse, the last of the Revolution. Guilford County was erected in 1771. Prior to that time the land grants were direct from the Lord Proprietor, Earl Granville. Guilford was formed from Orange and Rowan Counties. In the State Land Office at Raleigh, N. C., is a record of the conveyance to Richard Williams, 1st, in 1756, from the Lord Proprietor, of 874 acres of land in Rowan County, on a fork of Horsepen Creek, on which he resided until his death. In 1757 Henry Ballinger and Thomas Hunt, as trustees, received as a gift from Richard Williams, 1st, 53 acres of land, together with the necessary timber for the erection of a meeting-house. This tract the deed declares to be "for the use, benefit, privilege and convenience of a meetinghouse which is already erected and has the name of New Garden, for the Christian people called Quakers to meet in for publik worship of Almighty God, and also the ground to bury their dead in." The following Act of the North Carolina Legislature, dated 10th Mo. 19th, 1757, makes the Monthly Meeting a body politic capable of holding the land donated by Richard Williams, 1st, as a site for the meetinghouse :

"Whereas, it appears to this General Assembly that a certain Richard Williams, on the 19th of October one thousand seven hundred and fifty-seven, did convey a certain tract of land situated in New Garden, in Guilford County, to Henry Ballenger and Thomas Hunt, and their successors in trust for the use and benefit of the Monthly Meeting of the People called Quakers, in New Garden, in said County; and the said Henry Ballenger and Thomas Hunt, being dead, and there being no successors or means of appointing such provided in the said deed, or otherwise, For Remedy Whereof :

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of North Carolina, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the said tract and parcel of land conveyed by deed, bearing date as aforesaid, by the said Richard Williams to the said Henry Ballenger and Thomas Hunt, containing fifty-three acres, and situated in New Garden, in the County of Guilford, and bounded as follows, to-wit: Beginning at a hickory saplin, running thence west eighty pole to a white oak post, thence east sixty poles to a blackjack saplin, thence north one hundred and twenty pole to the first station, be and the same is hereby vested in fee in the said Monthly Meeting of the People called Quakers, of New Garden, in the County of Guilford, for the use and purposes expressed in the said deed from the said Richard Williams to the said Henry Ballenger and Thomas Hunt: And the said Monthly Meeting of the People called Quakers are hereby declared to be a body politic and corporate and may and shall act as such in all matters respecting the said land and premises; and for that purpose may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, in any court of law or equity in this State."

The present Guilford College, an Institution of the Society of Friends, formerly New Garden Boarding School, now occupies the land donated by Richard Williams, 1st, and the site of the first meetinghouse is marked in the present burying ground with granite blocks. Referring again to Mr. Week's "Southern Quakers & Slavery" we find, on page 105: "New Garden was destined to become the most important meeting in the State, and was the mother of many others."

The following account of the battle of Guilford Courthouse, 3rd Mo. 15th, 1781, which was fought on the plantation of Richard Williams, 1st, appears in a "History of the United States"--Bryant and Gray:

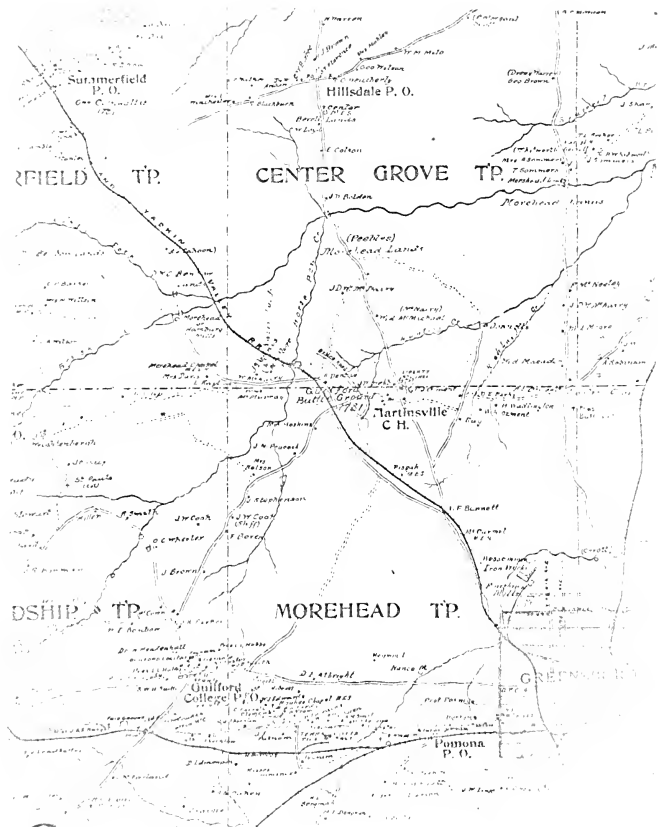

"Had he known that they had fought their way successfully with great damage to the enemy and were already at hand near the Courthouse, Greene might have continued the battle. As it was, with nearly the whole weight of Cornwallis' force bearing upon a portion of his own, he ordered a retreat. But it was a retreat, not a flight. The army fell back in good order for about twelve miles to Troublesome Creek, upon ground selected to be used in case of a reverse. How well fought a field it was, is plain from the report of casualties. About 1300 Americans were returned as dead, wounded or missing. The loss of Cornwallis was about a fourth of his army, or about 550 killed and wounded."

Lieutenant-Colonel Tarleton, in his "History of the Campaigns of 1780 and 1781, in the Southern Provinces of North America" says:

"The wounded of both armies were assembled expeditiously after the action, and surgeons were directed to separate the British and Hessians, who were severely wounded, from those who could bear the exercise of traveling; the former, to the amount of seventy, with several Americans who were in the same situation, were lodged, under the protection of a flag of truce, in New Garden Meetinghouse and other adjacent buildings (one of which was the residence of Richard Williams, 1st-Note), whilst the latter were placed in the best wagons, or on horseback to attend the motions of the King's troops."

Levi Coffin, the Abolitionist, whose mother was Prudence, daughter of Richard Williams, 1st, says in his "Reminiscences":

"The battle of Guilford Courthouse, fought about the close of the Revolutionary War, commenced near New Garden Meetinghouse and continued along the old Salisbury Road, a distance of about three miles, to Martinsville, the old Guilford Courthouse, near where the main battle was fought. A number of soldiers were killed near the Meetinghouse and along the road, and were buried by the roadside and in the Friends' burying ground near the Meetinghouse. I have often seen their graves. After the battle the Meetinghouse was used as a hospital for the wounded British officers. My grandfather Coffin's house was used by the American officers as a hospital for their sick and wounded. The two farms adjoined (the other being that of Richard Williams, 1st) and the headquarters of the different forces were thus in close proximity. The smallpox broke out among the officers and my grandfather Williams caught the disease from them and died."

Section of Guilford County, N. C. showing New Garden Meeting, the Battleground and Horse Pen Creek along which the 874 acre plantation of Richard Williams 1st. was located.

The Guilford battleground is now a public park containing monuments, memorial arches, and a museum filled with the relics of the battle. A descendant of Richard Williams, 1st, has in his possession a curious iron bullet, showing the marks of the mold, about three quarters of an inch in diameter, ploughed up on the Guilford battleground 127 years after the event.

The North Carolinians had the usual hardships to encounter that attend the first settlers of a country, relying almost wholly for meat on what game could be shot, and they were experts with the rifle. Addison Coffin, in his entertaining "Pioneer Days in Guilford County, North Carolina", relates that great shooting matches were held by the Friends at New Garden, and the cadets of the houses in those early days were not considered to qualify unless they could shoot out both eyes of a turkey at a distance of 100 feet with one shot. During one of these meets by the side of New Garden Meetinghouse, a beautiful damsel clad in buckskin and leggins emerged from the woods carrying nothing but a rifle. She asked to be allowed to compete and when queried as to who she was replied simply: "Ann the huntress." It is recorded that she was an expert shot and distanced all competitors, much to the chagrin of the younger men. She remained with them several weeks and then disappeared into the forest as silently as she came, and the mystery of her identity was never unraveled.

Richard Williams, 1st, died 5th Mo. 6th, 1781, and was buried the next day at New Garden; he contracted smallpox from a wounded British officer whom he was humanely nursing in his house. His wife died 6th Mo. 25th, 1815.

Silas, Jesse and Richard, 2nd, sons of Richard Williams, 1st, were prominent in the business meetings, being appointed often on important matters claiming the consideration of the Society in Monthly, Quarterly and Yearly Meetings. Memorials to Congress on the slave evil spread upon the early minutes of New Garden Meeting show that a North Carolina Friend of the period was very much alive to the vital affairs of the day and bravely faced all opposition in defence of his principles.

The compiler had occasion to examine the old records of New Garden Meeting in tracing the movements of some of the early Southern Friends, and in the library of the present Guilford College were found ancient, but well preserved volumes of standard works bearing the autograph, neatly inscribed, of Richard Williams, which would show that he considered intellectual cultivation as important as the cultivation of his estate. The volumes, apparently, had been bequeathed to the library of the Meeting he had done so much to found.

OF RICHARD WILLIAMS, 1st.

(C) SILAS WILLIAMS married Mary, daughter of Eleazer and Catherine Hunt, of North Carolina, on 5th Mo. 16th, 1770, at New Garden, and lived to be 90 years of age.

"Eleazer Hunt was a brother of William Hunt, a famous minister of the Society of Friends of whom Richard Jordau once said: "He was the greatest man North Carolina ever held" (Biographical sketches and anecdotes of Friends--1871). Nathan, a son of William Hunt and brother of Mary, was another preacher of the Society of Friends who lived to be 85 years old. Life of J. J. Gurney, 1854, says: "He is now in his eightieth year, a thorough gentleman in his manners, and his face shining with the 'Heavenly Oil'. It is delightful to be with the dear old man, to receive his unqualified tokens of hearty unity, and to hear his outpourings in the ministry."

He obtained a removal certificate from the Westfield (Surrey Co.) Monthly Meeting to Ohio, for himself and family, in 4th Mo., 1814, and left for Cincinnati, Ohio, in the same month, arriving at that city in 5th Mo., 1814, having traveled by carriage and wagon over the wilderness road, through Cumberland Gap, and by way of Lexington, Kentucky. His son Micajah T. had preceded them three years and was then at Cincinnati. He presented his certificate to the Cincinnati Monthly Meeting. Jesse Williams, 1st, died 12th Mo. 21st, 1833, aged 80 years.

Sarah (Terrill) Williams died 8-20. 1833.)

Sarah Terrill (or Tyrrell) was the daughter of Micajah and Sarah (Lynch) Terrill, and was born in Caroline County, Virginia, September, 1763.

The Lynch family was founded in America in the early part of 1700 by an Irish boy of that name who succeeded in stowing himself away in the cargo of a vessel loading on the Irish coast for America. He was allowed to continue the voyage, and after arrival in America married Sarah, the daughter of Christopher Clark, a member of the Society of Friends. A number of children were the result of this union, among them Colonel Charles Lynch, of Revolutionary fame. Another son laid out the city of Lynchburg, Virginia. A daughter Sarah, who was a Minister (Public Friend) and labored much in her calling against the institution of slavery, married Micajah Terrill. Several children were born to Micajah and Sarah Terrill, among them Mary, who married her cousin Edward Lynch, and Sarah, who became the second wife of Jesse Williams, 1st. Charles Lynch, son of Colonel Charles Lynch, was Governor of Mississippi from 1835 to 1837.

Susan Creighton was the daughter of Honorable William Creighton, first Secretary of State of the State of Ohio, and Eliza Meade.

The Meade and Creighton families were among the earliest settlers in Virginia. Eliza Meade, who married Honorable William Creighton, was a descendant of David Meade, who with his brother Richard Kidder Meade of Washington's staff, were the originals of Thackeray's novel "The Virginians". Bishop William Meade of Virginia, author of "Old Churches and Families of Virginia", and Richard Kidder Meade, 2nd, Congressman, and Minister to Brazil 1857-61, were sons of Richard Kidder Meade.

31 E WILLIAM

6E HON. MICAJAH T. WILLIAMS began his career as Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, Cincinnati. Soon after he became connected with the "Western Spy". During the War of 1812 the editor of that paper, who was a Captain in the Army, lost his life, and Mr. Williams succeeded to the editorship. On 3rd Mo. 12th, 1818, he married Hannah Jones. He served as a Member of the Ohio Legislature, and in the session of 1819 when Governor Ethan Allen Brown in his message called the attention of the Legislature to the necessity of providing some means by which the farmers of the interior could send their produce to Lake Erie, the matter was submitted to a Committee of which Mr. Williams, then a Member from Hamilton County, was Chairman. A Bill was passed authorizing two canals, one from Cleveland to the Ohio River and one from Cincinnati north to Maumee Bay. Micajah T. Williams was Speaker of the Assembly when this Bill was passed. At the end of his term as Speaker he was appointed by the Governor of the State a member of the Board of Canal Commissioners. In 1832 he was appointed by President Jackson Surveyor-General of the Northwest Territory, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of General Lytle. He served as a Director of the Ohio Life Insurance & Trust Company, and later became its President. In 1832 he went to England to negotiate the sale of the Ohio State bonds. As a Democrat he was a candidate of that Party before the Legislature for United States Senator, in opposition to Thomas Ewing, who was chosen to that position by the Whig Party. In 1840 Mr. Williams, when General William Henry Harrison was the Whig candidate for President, united with that Party, giving as his reason his conviction "that the Tariff which the Democratic Party opposed, was a necessity for the People, and that the Democratic Party was much more of a Southern than a National one". During his services as Surveyor-General, Byron Kilbourn was made Surveyor of the Government lands in Wisconsin, and soon after his appointment Mr. Williams said to him in course of conversation: "Somewhere on the western shore of Lake Michigan between Fort Dearborn (now Chicago) and Green Bay there must some day be a great city. As you work along that shore examine it thoroughly, determine where that city will be, and I will join you in the purchase of the land and lay out the city." The mouth of the Milwaukee was chosen, and at the first sale of Government land, the land on the west side of the Milwaukee River was purchased, and soon after the city of Milwaukee was laid out, and at a later period the lots were divided in equal numbers between Mr. Kilbourn and Mr. Williams. Micajah T. Williams died in 1844 at the age of 52 years.

32E MAJOR CHARLES HENRY WILLIAMS was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, 12th Mo. 21st, 1818, and began his career as a rodman in the party engaged in locating the White River Canal of Indiana. He was an assistant engineer when he and many others were compelled to abandon their profession owing to a financial disturbance that suspended all such improvements in the State. In 1842 he went to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to take charge of the estate of his father, and in 1843 returned to Ohio and settled in Toledo, which city had been laid out by his father, Hon. Micajah T. Williams, and Major William Oliver, where he engaged in the forwarding and commission business. In 1849 he married Sarah Clark Thomas, of St. Clairville, Ohio. In 1848 Mr. Williams returned to Milwaukee in the settlement of his father's estate, and while there was appointed Receiver of the Government Land Office. In 1853 he retired to Sauk County, Wis., where he engaged in the cultivation of his estate for the next thirty years. In August, 1863, when President Lincoln called for 300,000 men Mr. Williams raised a company of soldiers which became part of the 23rd Wisconsin Regiment, commanded by Colonel J. J. Guppy. Later he was appointed a Major by the Governor, in which capacity he served one year, when he resigned from the Army. Much of Mr. Williams' time in the later years of his life, since retiring from active business, has been spent in writing and publishing short articles to the people on the rights of the oppressed races, more especially the negro race in the United States. He also served for six years on the Board of Regents of the State University of Wisconsin. He now resides, at the age of 90, at Baraboo, Wis.

7E HON. ACHILLES WILLIAMS was born in Grayson County, Virginia, and removed with his father's family to Guilford County, North Carolina, where his grandfather resided, and in 1814 moved to Cincinnati, Ohio. He returned to North Carolina in 1815 and married Beulah Unthank, and in 1817 moved to Warren County, Ohio, and in 1818, to Richmond, Indiana, where he entered into a partnership in establishing and operating a foundry, the first in the place. This business was not a success, owing to his partner, a man named Grover, absconding with the funds, leaving Achilles Williams the debts. These debts he voluntarily took upon himself and paid them off, at the same time supporting comfortably his family of ten children and another child, Charles Burchenal, whose grandmother "would die happy if Beulah Williams would adopt her orphan grandson". Achilles Williams was the first president of the State Bank of Indiana (1830), and served as Postmaster of Richmond, Indiana, and as County Treasurer for eleven years beginning 1844, no bond being re-

Beulah Unthank was the daughter of Joseph and Rebeckah Unthank, of North Carolina. The Unthank family possessed large estates in the Old North State and were of English origin, from Newcastle-on-Tyne. Beulah (Unthank) Williams died 4th Mo. 28th, 1871.

His wife Elizabeth, a noted Minister, had visited this country in 1697. With Richard Webb and family came his brother-in-law John Lea and family. They settled at Concord. Richard Webb settled in Birmingham Township, Chester Co., Penna., in 1704. He resided on the Brandywine just above Chadd's Ford, and died in 1719. "He was first a rodman and then an engineer on the preliminary survey for the Miami, and Erie Canal, and continued in the service of the State of Ohio from 1824 till 1832, when he was appointed by Indiana Chief Engineer of the Wabash & Erie Canal. In 1837 he became Chief Engineer of all the internal improvements of the State, including about 1300 miles of canals, railroads and other works. In 1853 he became Chief Engineer of the Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad, and in 1856, after its consolidation with other Roads, he became a Director. From 1864 till his resignation in 1869 he was appointed annually a Government Director of the Union Pacific Railroad and devoted himself to securing the best location through the Rocky Mountains. He was Chief Engineer and Receiver of the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad in 1869-71, and was connected with other Roads.

Mr. Williams was active in the councils of the Presbyterian Church, and served as a Director of the Theological Seminary of the Northwest from its organization till his death. A discourse on his life by the Rev. David W. Moffat, D. D., was printed privately in 1886; and also in "Civil and Military Engineers of America." (Appleton's Encyclopedia of American Biography.)

120 E REV. MEADE CREIGHTON WILLIAMS, D. D., was born in Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1840, and died at Mackinac Island, Mich., 8th Mo., 22nd, 1906. He was graduated at Miami University, Ohio, 1861. He took graduate courses at Princeton University, and studied for the Ministry at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Princeton, graduating in 1864. He received the degree D. D. in 1882. In 1867 he married Elizabeth Brown Riddle. Mr. Williams began his work as Minister of the Gospel at Sterling, Ill. His other charges were at Sandusky, Ohio, Williamsport, Maryland, and Princeton, Illinois. In the early nineties, a weak throat, which had always hampered his work in the pulpit, compelled him to abandon his work as a preacher, but being possessed of private fortune he was able to continue his chosen work through the medium of his pen and his pocket. He purchased a controlling interest in a church paper, the "Mid-Continent", of St. Louis, Mo., of which he became Editor-in-Chief. This weekly periodical was afterwards consolidated with the "Herald and Presbyter", of Cincinnati, Ohio, for which, though retaining his residence in St. Louis, he continued to write editorially until almost the day of his death. He was a Director of the Theological Seminary of the Northwest, at Chicago, which his father, the Hon. Jesse Lynch Williams, had helped to found, and was strong and active in the councils of his Church. He gave liberally of his time and means to the conduct and maintenance of more than one struggling church and educational institutions throughout the Middle West, on several of whose Boards he served for years as Trustee or Director.

In addition to his religious writings in Church papers and reviews Dr. Williams published from time to time, chiefly for private distribution, several brochures containing his observations as a traveller on foreign countries, and was also the author of a book entitled "Early Mackinaw", which dealt with the historical and picturesque interests of the island in the Straits of Mackinaw (Mich.), where he had a summer home for many years and where he died 8th Mo., 18th, 1906.

Elizabeth Brown Riddle was the daughter of the Rev. David Hunter Riddle, at one time President of Washington and Jefferson College and well-remembered as a Presbyterian Clergyman in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

DESCENDENTS OF RICHARD, 2ND (F), FOURTH
CHILD OF RICHARD WILLIAMS, 1ST.

(F) RICHARD WILLIAMS, 2nd, was born at New Garden, N. C. He lived to be 99 years of age. He owned a plantation of between 300 and 400 acres in Guilford County, upon which he made his residence while in North Carolina. The deed books in the Recorder's office at Greensboro, N. C., show many conveyances of land to him from 1787 to 1805. Sometime between the latter date and 1835 he moved with his family to Wayne County, Indiana, where he lived for many years a respected member of the Society of Friends and where he died in 1854. On 1st month 13, 1835, is recorded at Greensboro, N. C., a conveyance of 99 acres of land near New Garden, by Richard Williams and Sarah his wife, then of Wayne County, Indiana, to Henry W. Macy in North Carolina, being "part of a larger tract inherited by Sarah the wife from her father"; and this apparently severed the last connection with North Carolina, as Richard Williams, 2nd, had sold all his North Carolina lands, having previously liberated his slaves, before moving to Indiana.

A large number of Friends migrated with their families from North Carolina to Ohio and Indiana about this time, due to their conscientious scruples against slavery. Fernando G. Cartland, in his "Southern Heroes—Friends in War Time," says of this migration:

"The prophetic voice of their preachers was heard, telling them of the judgments of the Almighty that were coming upon the Southland because of the cry of her bondmen, and warning them to flee lest they be partakers of the chastisement. One minister in particular visited every meeting in Georgia, South Carolina and lower North Carolina, preaching a day of vengeance and warning the Friends to escape. The result was that the entire body of Friends in that region, and many from the other parts of North Carolina and from Virginia and Maryland emigrated to Ohio and Indiana, and other Western States. Upon arrival at the neighborhood chosen for their settlement, they would sometimes form almost the same community of people, and name their town and meeting the same as that which they had left in the Southland, and with courageous hearts begin the work of restoring their lost fortunes, with a spirit of freedom and happiness. Many of the leading members of Church and State of the Western country to-day are descendants of this worthy ancestry."

Upon the outbreak of the Civil War an Act was proposed to the North Carolina Legislature requiring every male within the State to agree to defend the independent government of the Confederate States, the alternative being banishment within thirty days. The Act fell to the ground. Governor William Graham said in opposing it: "It would amount to a decree of wholesale expatriation of the Quakers, and on the expulsion of such a people from our midst the whole civilized world would cry shame."

One of our present statesmen, of national stature, whose parents were members of the famous New Garden Meeting that moved from North Carolina to Indiana with the migration referred to, gives the following interesting description in a recent account of his life:

"My parents were both Quakers, had been reared in a Quaker settlement in North Carolina, where their forebears had found an asylum from persecution in England and New England; for they represented the two branches of the emigration which had gone to North Carolina for freedom of worship. They left North Carolina for a like cause--opposition to slavery--and while they loved the salubrious climate of the Old North State, and loved their Quaker settlement at New Garden, in Guilford County, they constantly bore testimony against slavery; and every spring would see a half dozen families dispose of their plantations and depart for the West to make new homes in a land where their children could grow up without coming into contact with this system. There were a number of Quaker settlements in Indiana. We did not have the public library, or the academy, or college, or the theatre, and concert, and opera; but we had a few good books and these formed the nucleus of a circulating library, and the weekly newspaper from New York or Cincinnati--these were read and cared for until they were literally worn out with the reading. We seized on a book no matter if it was rather dull, with spirit, because it was a change from the routine of the workday. We had the bible and standard histories, with a few books of standard poets and novels, and we read them just as eagerly as the boys on the streets today, read the wildest stories of cowboys and Indians. I sometimes think that we were better off with a few good books that had lived through the ages for our constant companions, than we should have been with such a mass of literature that it requires a board of library experts to make selection between the good and the bad, that which is helpful reading and that which is the veriest trash. It was not necessary to introduce reform spelling in those days, because we learned to spell according to the best authority, and we did not forget. It was a disgrace not to spell well."

Richard Williams, 2nd, married Sarah Baldwin, daughter of William Baldwin, at New Garden, North Carolina, on 6th month 17, 1778, he married Susan Painter as his second wife and Sarah Russell as his third wife, and died in 1854, in Indiana. His first wife was born 5th month 23, 1762, and died 9th month 16, 1798.

Sarah Baldwin was a member of the Colonial family of that name and a daughter of William and Elizabeth Baldwin, who moved from Pennsylvania or New Jersey to North Carolina in the early part of the 18th century and purchased a 600-acre plantation along the waters of the Horscpen in Guilford County, that State.

1 F JESSE, 1st	2-29-1780	9-6-1814	Hannah Albertson, who died 5th mo. 12th, 1843.

THE WILLIAMS FAMILY

Hannah Albertson was the daughter of Jacob and Mary Albertson, of Plymouth Meeting, Penna., and a descendant of William Albertson who came from Holland and settled in Bucks County about 1690. William Albertson's property was on Poquessin Creek and adjoined the land of Edwin Forest, the founder of the Forest Fund. He owned slaves and also had a large tract of ground in New Jersey. Hannah (Albertson) Williams conducted a boarding school at Plymouth for a long time, in the house afterwards occupied by Joseph R. Ellis. At the time of the separation in the Society of Friends in 1827, the old Meetinghouse remained in the possession of the Hicksite Branch, and Hannah Williams gave land for the erection of a Meetinghouse for the Orthodox Branch, as long as the doctrines held by this Meeting should be in conformity with those held by the Meeting at Fourth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

Ruth Reeve was the daughter of Samuel Reeve and Ruth Scull, and a descendant of Mark Reeve, one of the Signers of the first Constitution of New Jersey and afterward a member of the Provincial Assembly, who came to New Jersey, in 1676, with the Fenwick Colony that settled Salem, N. J., and purchased, before leaving England, 400 acres, part of the present town of Greenwich. Her great grandfather, Joseph Reeve, was a Member of the New Jersey Assembly and a Judge of the Pleas, and married Elinor Bagnall, a sister of Elizabeth Bagnall who married John Mifflin, father of General Thomas Mifflin, Governor of Pennsylvania.

Martha, a sister of Ruth Reeve, married Caleb Pleasants of Philadelphia, and their descendants have intermarried with the Pitfield, Corse, Smith, Starin, Mills, Troth and Tracy families.

Rachel Reeve, another sister, married Henry Cope, of "Awbury," a beautiful 60-acre tract in the suburbs of Philadelphia, son of Thomas Pym Cope, founder of the Mercantile Library of Philadelphia. The descendants of this union have intermarried with the Hartshorne, Stork, Kane, Stokes, Emlen, Lewis, Evans and Scattergood families of Philadelphia and with the Foote family.

Samuel, a brother of Ruth Reeve, married Susan deB. Keim, and their daughter Julia married George Bacon Wood, an artist of Philadelphia.

Samuel, Rachel, Ruth and Martha Reeve also trace their descent from the Lord-Chancellor Somers family of New Jersey, an English member of which, Sir George Somers, was an Admiral in the British Navy. The wreck of his ship, the "Sea Venture," on Bermuda Island in 1609, was the basis of Shakespeare's play "The Tempest" written in 1612. A monument in the Naval Academy grounds at Annapolis commemorates the exploits of John Somers, Naval Officer, an American member.

1F JESSE WILLIAMS, 1st, was born in North Carolina and removed 11th mo. 3rd, 1805, to Westtown Boarding School and afterwards to Evesham, N. J., where he conducted a school, and later to Plymouth Meeting in the White Marsh Valley (Penna). He was a recommended Minister of the Society of Friends and traveled widely in this service.

"He was early concerned to walk circumspectly, as in the sight of an all-seeing eye, and to encourage others to do likewise. He was a remarkable example of uprightness and sobriety, yet there was an innocent cheerfulness of disposition and sweetness of manners, which rendered him an agreeable companion for the older as well as the younger class. Having been a scholar in the school of Christ, he was made 'quick of understanding in the fear of the Lord'; and being brought under exercise for the good of souls, he became qualified for service as a messenger of the Gospel." (Memoirs of Jesse and Hannah Williams.)

He married Hannah Albertson at a public meeting of Friends at Plymouth, 11th mo. 12th, 1807, and the following is the form of certificate:

Jacob Roberts, born in 1810, was the son of Isaac and Alice (Comfort) Roberts, and married Phebe Williams in 1837. The progenitor in America of the Roberts family was Cadwalader Roberts, eldest son of Robert Cadwalader born in Wales in 1673, who arrived in 1698 and settled in Gwynedd, Penna. In 1710 he bought 140 acres near North Wales. Jacob Roberts is shown by the records to have been a man highly esteemed for his benevolence.

Isaac Roberts, a brother of Jacob, was born in 1814, and married, in 1850, Mary H. Bacon (born 1818), daughter of John Bacon of Greenwich, N. J. No issue.

According to the Welsh custom the son of Robert Cadwalader transposed the name.

19 F	JESSE, 2nd	5-7-1814	6-30-1874	Frances C. Stokes

Frances C. Stokes was the daughter of Samuel Stokes, M. D., and Susan Myers of Stroudsburg, Pa. Samuel Stokes was one of the earliest settlers and a leading physician of Stroudsburg. In the garden of his residence were found the ruins of an old fort, in which the early settlers took refuge from the Indians.

Thomas Stokes, first settler and oldest ancestor in America, was born 10th mo. 30th, 1640. He married Mary Barnard of London, and his marriage is on record at Devonshire House, London, 10th mo. 30th, 1668. He was a contemporary of George Fox and William Penn. With his wife and one or two young children, his eldest son John being one, he sailed from England in the good ship "Kent," Marlow Master, and arrived at Newcastle, Delaware, on 6th mo. 16th, 1677, and subsequently settled near the town of Burlington, N. J., where his name appears among the signers of the Proprietors and Freeholders in the Grants and Concessions of West New Jersey.

John Stokes, brother of Thomas Stokes, married Anna Barber in 1676, and his marriage is also recorded at Devonshire Meetinghouse. He was a Friend and on account of his principles was confined in White Lion Prison in Surrey, in 1664. He left five children, John, Thomas, Joseph, Sarah and Mary.

John Stokes, the eldest son of Thomas Stokes, born 1675, is mentioned in the will of Thomas Stokes, which is recorded in the office of the Secretary of State at Trenton, N. J. He married Elizabeth Green in 1712, daughter of Thomas Green, known as "Lady Green."

The Green family were descended from the English Nobility. Sir Henry Green was Lord Chief Justice of England and died in 1370. Sir Thomas Green, of Norton, who died in 1506, left a daughter Matilda, who married Sir Thomas Parr. Their daughter was Katherine Parr, the third wife of King Henry VIII.

Henry S. Williams has in his possession a curious old chest, which was a wedding present to Susan Myers Stokes, from her mother, bearing the date of May 4th, 1789, and the name of Ann Maria Braun. The old bible, bound in pigskin, with brass clasps and curious woodcuts, was printed in Basle in 1734 and contains the records of the Myers family as far back as 1740, and is in the possession of Jesse Williams, 3rd.

17F PHEBE WILLIAMS was married to Jacob Roberts, and resided with her husband at Paoli, Penna. She was a Minister of the Society of Friends, and for many years was on the Committee of Westtown Boarding School.

19F JESSE WILLIAMS, 2nd, was, for many years, in the wholesale and retail drygoods business on Second street and on Arch street, Philadelphia. During the latter years of his life, he was in the coal business on Walnut street. He was a member of the Northern District Meeting at 6th and Noble streets. He always took an active interest in public affairs and was one of the first members of the Volunteer Firemen's Association, also an active member of the U. S. Hose Company, in the days when many of the gentlemen of Philadelphia participated in such organizations. He was a keen sportsman and very fond of trout fishing, visiting the Pocono region in the early spring months, until near the end of his life. He was an expert maker of artificial flies and could readily tie a fly to imitate those that were to be found on the water at the time of day when he was fishing. He died 6th mo. 30th, 1874, and was buried in the old burial ground at Plymouth Meetinghouse, Montgomery Co., Penna. The burial ground is now used in common by both branches of the Society. The magnificent oak and buttonwood trees give an added charm to this historical ground. The Williams, Albertson and Foulke families, who were connected by marriage, have been buried here for many generations.

He married Frances C. Stokes 10th mo. 7th, 1847. Certificate:

Levi Coffin and Catherine White.

Levi Coffin was the Abolitionist known as the President of the Underground Railroad, having been instrumental in finding homes in Canada and elsewhere for over 3000 escaped slaves. He made it a rule not to arrange for their escape, but to assist them after they had once taken the step. Some of the incidents in Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" were based on occurrences in which Levi Coffin figured. He it was who harbored the slave girl "Eliza Harris" after her flight across the Ohio River on floating cakes of ice. Rev. Dr. Rust, Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, wrote of Levi Coffin: "It would take less bravery to go up to the cannon's mouth than to do the work he did. He walked through the streets hooted at and threatened by mobs, and the battlefield has scarcely such illustrations of heroism as he exhibited every day." An extensive account of the work and adventures of Levi Coffin will be found in his "Reminiscences," published in 1876.
